Any one can tell just about the day a ony of bees will awarm, if they go pelves with the interior of the hive Some people know so little about beau that they will watch the hives constantly for swarms, perhaps for weeks and months, and then are liable to be off their guard just when the swarm comes. In the first place, eclanies must get very strong before taking the swarming fover, and usually even then they are not likely to swarm unless they are gathering pleaty of honey.

Bees swarm more largely during the month of June in most localities, but nay swarm earlier if the colony is trong, even in the month of April Bees as a rule get ready to swarm some time before swarming. They be gin to construct queen cells eight ten days before, and it is the present of these queen cells that plainly giv their little secret away. Learn first what a queen cell is. The queen cells are quite different from all other cells in the hive. They are built on the out edges of the combs, or in uneven places on the surface. In beginning them the bees build a heavier base about them than other cells, and in cup shape, and with walls less than an eighth of an inch deep. They are thus ready for the queen to deposit eggs in, and ordinarily there are from ten to a dozen and in some cases more in a colony.

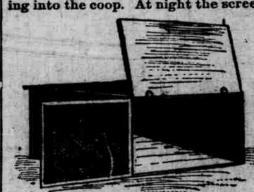

After the eggs are deposited in these cells we may know that the bees are preparing to swarm, and in eight or nine days will come off, if the weather will permit them, or on the first fine day thereafter. At this time these cells will be built out full size, from three-fourths to one inch long. At this age the cells are sealed over, which is always an indication that the swarm is the first fine day.

This applies to first swarms. Second swarms come after these young queens begin to hatch, eight days later .- A. H. Duff, in Farmers' Voice.

AN EFFECTIVE COOP.

How to Build a Safe and Comfortable Shelter Suitable for Chicks the Year Around.

The hen is confined while the chicks run free. During the day the screen door is left slightly ajar for the exit of the chicks, while the wooden door is brought forward to a level, resting on it in place and serving as a shade, or to prevent sudden showers from beating into the coop. At night the screen

MONSTER INCUBATOR.

An Australian Machine, Built on the Hot-House Principle, with Ca-pacity of 14,800 Eggs.

According to a Sydney paper, Australia has the largest duck ranch in the world, and has just completed, with cubator in the world. The incubator 14,800 hen eggs. The machine is built on the hot-house principle, and, in fact, is a hot-house. It stands in the open and is constructed of ordinary pine weather boards, with corrugated iron roof. The egg trays each hold 130 duck or 160 hen eggs, and there are four of these end to end in 11 tiers, one above the other on each side of the room, making a total of 88. Moisture is supplied in pans beneath the bottom tier of trays. The heat is supplied by means of steam pipes from the boiler, water.—Puck. nish motive power for the various works in conenction with the establishment. The incubator is said to be working well and bringing out a large percentage of ducks. This sesson the machine has brought from 10 to 80 per of cent. and the proprietor has about 5,000 ducklings. The incubator will be ate watched with much interest by the American incubator men.-Journal of Agriculture.

Clean Nests Are Necessary. The hens prefer clean nests, and when they refuse to lay in the poul try-house, and begin to deposit their eggs in the hay-loft, in the foodtroughs, or away in the fields, the chances are that lice have taken possession of the nests and driven the hens away.
